Inspiring Optimistic Learners

Louis Sanderson

Year 12

He is the nicest smart person I have ever taught! Not only is he intelligent he works really hard. He is a model A level student. He does all his homework on time and to a high standard – every time. He produces excellent revision notes after every lesson and emails them to me to check them through – he is a very proactive learner. He is respected and admired by his peers – he has unintentionally set up a study group over in the sixth form common room, whereby he downloads past paper questions and works through them with his peers which is massively positively impactful for him and his peers. He is very modest, super polite but also has a great sense of humour. He will go far.”

“Louis is an awesome student – very conscientious about his work, lots of hard work done out of school, very thorough notes, supports lots of other students, model student, I wish I could clone him. Think he knows more about the OCR deadlines than I do”.

Louis is one of the most hard working and proactive students I have ever taught. He is the epitome of a keen student who wants to get the very best of his education. Throughout GCSE and A Level he works tirelessly outside the classroom to make sure that his understanding and application are sound. He frequently seeks out and finds new resources that he shares with others, and it is really clear that he has mastered independent work. He is keen to read ahead of where we are currently in lessons so that he is prepared, and his contribution in class is always well thought out, and he is respectful of others and never acts in a way that makes other students feel less able.

In terms of outside of the classroom Louis wants a career in Medicine, and he has secured a placement for work experience at Derriford Hospital where he has attended on a regular basis providing support on one of their wards. He enjoys this so much that he even planned to go in on Christmas Eve as this was his timetabled session and he wanted to continue to provide support for the staff and patients too.

Louis has also secured a place on the Exeter Scholars Programme and has really enjoyed meeting and working with staff and students at Exeter University.

Louis has thoroughly researched all of his choices for after A Levels (and started doing this even before starting A Levels), he has visited, emailed and researched so that he has already narrowed his Uni choices down to a manageable amount so is already prepared for his UCAS application when the process opens. We wish you the best of luck Louis you will be awesome whatever you decide to do!
